Intuit Supports Dave Camp Tax Simplification Proposal

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Intuit Inc. (Nasdaq: INTU) today issued the following statement in support of House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dave Camp's proposal to simplify the U.S. tax code.

It can be attributed to Brad Smith, Intuit president and chief executive officer.

"As a company that tackles the current tax code on behalf of 26 million Americans each year, we know how complex the tax code can be. Tax reform should be focused on simplifying the tax code and making it easier for individuals and small businesses to understand their taxes.

"We commend Chairman Camp and the House Ways and Means Committee for their efforts to address the daunting task of tax simplification and reform. Intuit is committed, like the chairman, to see the tax code simplified, reducing the burden on American taxpayers and small businesses. This is a national policy imperative and Intuit looks forward to working with him and other policymakers of both parties across the Congress as the tax reform process moves forward."
