Diane Greene to Step Down From Intuit Board of Directors; Former Amazon.com CFO Thomas Szkutak Nominated

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Intuit Inc. (Nasdaq: INTU) announced that Diane Greene will step down from the company's board of directors after 11 years of service. In addition, the board has nominated Thomas Szkutak, to stand for election to the board at the annual meeting.

"I'm grateful for Diane's contributions, leadership and vision that helped Intuit transform its business over the last decade," said Brad Smith, Intuit chairman and chief executive officer.

"When Diane joined the board in 2006, we were on the cusp of moving to the cloud. Today, our One Intuit Ecosystem helps power prosperity for customers all over the globe. On behalf of Intuit and the board of directors, I want to thank Diane for her commitment and encouragement that helped turn our vision into awesome experiences for our customers."

Greene was co-founder and the CEO of VMware from 1998 until 2008. She is the CEO for Google's cloud businesses, and also serves on the company's board of directors. Greene will continue serving on the Intuit board until the annual shareholder meeting in January, 2018.

Board Nominates Szkutak

Szkutak was the former senior vice president and chief financial officer at Amazon.com from 2002 to 2015. He previously spent 20 years with General Electric, where he held a variety of leadership positions both within the United States, and throughout Europe, Asia and Australia.

"Tom's financial and global experience will serve Intuit well as we work to strengthen the power of our ecosystem and deliver unparalleled benefits to our consumers, small business and self-employed customers," said Smith. "I'm thrilled to have the opportunity to bring on someone like Tom to Intuit, and look forward to benefitting from his knowledge and experience, both of which will contribute to the growth and success for all of our stakeholders."
