

Taxpayers Have More Tax Questions, TurboTax Has Free Answers

TurboTax Offers All Taxpayers Free Live Tax Advice

SAN DIEGO--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- TurboTax^(R), the nation's No. 1-rated, best sellingtax software from Intuit Inc. (Nasdaq: INTU) is offering free live tax advice through January 31. And taxpayers are asking questions in record numbers. Tax questions submitted though www.FreeTaxQuestion.com increased 163 percent over the same period last year.

"Not surprisingly, people have questions about the impact of the economy on their taxes. Foreclosures, investments and unemployment are top of mind," said Bob Meighan, a certified public accountant and vice president with TurboTax. "TurboTax makes it easy to get your tax question answered now so you can get a jump on your taxes, file early and get your refund back fast. It's about helping taxpayers get the biggest possible refund they deserve and putting that money in their wallet when they need it."

No purchase is required. Any taxpayer can talk to a live TurboTax tax expert who will answer their personal, federal tax-related question for free (a $29.95 value) through Jan. 31 at www.FreeTaxQuestion.com. Taxpayers can submit a question online and they'll receive a personal call back, at a time they request. This is a limited time offer and subject to availability through January 2009.
